fore the Civil war by Samuel Post, lately deceased. After conducting the business for several years Mr. Post sold it to Henderson & Glover, who later sold it to H. P. Glover, Later it was purchased by Lamb, Davis & Kishlar and in 1896 Mr. Lamb retired and from them until the present time it has been operated under the firm name of Davis & Kishlar.

The Record with a host of the conducting to unity co-operation. A man's worth in a community may be estimated by his co-operation. Again no man amounts to anything until he gets married. Life, health and prosperity come from our obedience to natural laws. The greatest hindrance in every community is due to the fact that we do not understand each other better."

News of the death of Roland Strang, who died last week in Kansas City, Mo., came as a great shock to his many relatives and friends here. Mr. Strang, who was 20 years old, was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Strang and all his life had been a resident of Superior, until a few weeks ago, when he entered a mechanical school in Kansas City. He will be missed not only by his parents and sister, Camilla, but alo by a large circle of friends here and in Ypsilanti, where he attended school. Deepest sympathy of the neighbors is expressed for the sorrowing amily. Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church in Ypsilanti Saturday afternoon and the ody laid to rest in Highland cemeters.
